Lifeline

Overcoming the digital divide & opening doors to opportunity

Lifeline is a benefit program funded by the Federal Communications Commission. The program helps people in many ways, but today we will be talking about the Lifeline cell phone and cell phone plan.

There are many providers of the Lifeline cell phone and cell phone plan. They each provide between 250-1,000 anytime minutes, unlimited text messages and 1GB of cellular data.

An enhanced SIM card that can be used to access unlimited data in certain areas is available from one provider.

Text messages are not the same as picture messages. Picture messages may be limited to a certain number per month, or may be limited by available cellular data.

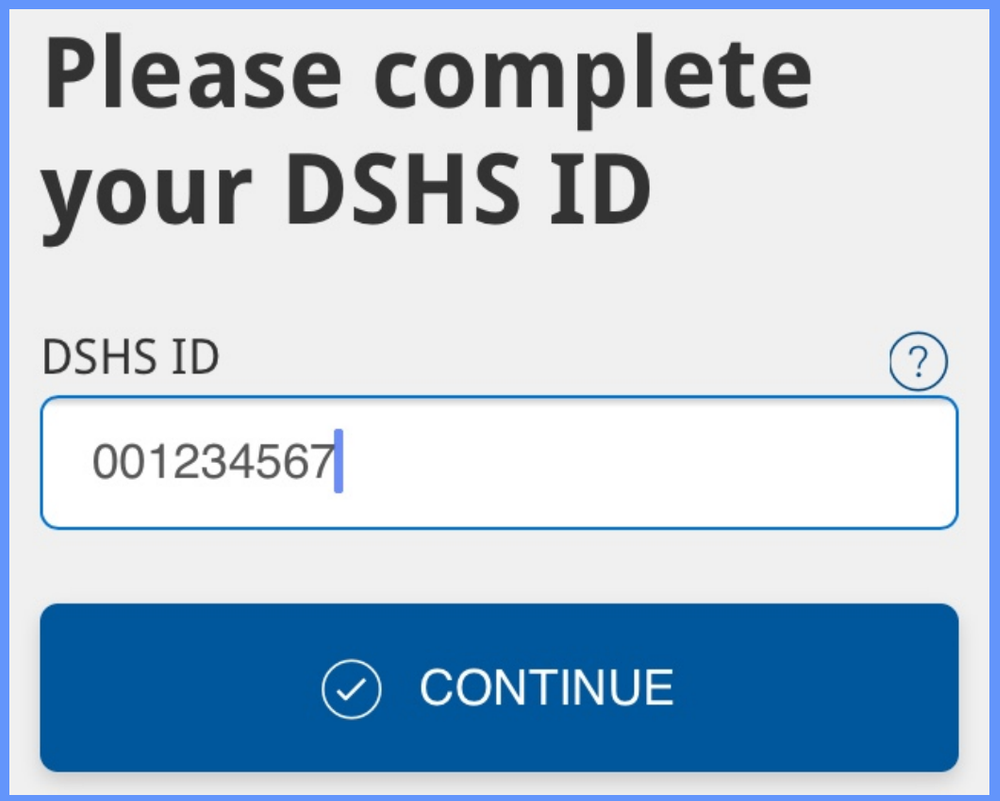
What is needed?

A client will need their DSHS paperwork and in some cases may need their identification. In many cases, the client will only need their DSHS client ID number. If documentation is requested by the provider, an updated DSHS award letter is usually sufficient.

The DSHS Client ID must be 9 digits. If the client has a DSHS client ID that is less than 9 digits, add zeros to the front to make it 9 digits. For example, if the client ID is 1234567, enter the client ID as 001234567.

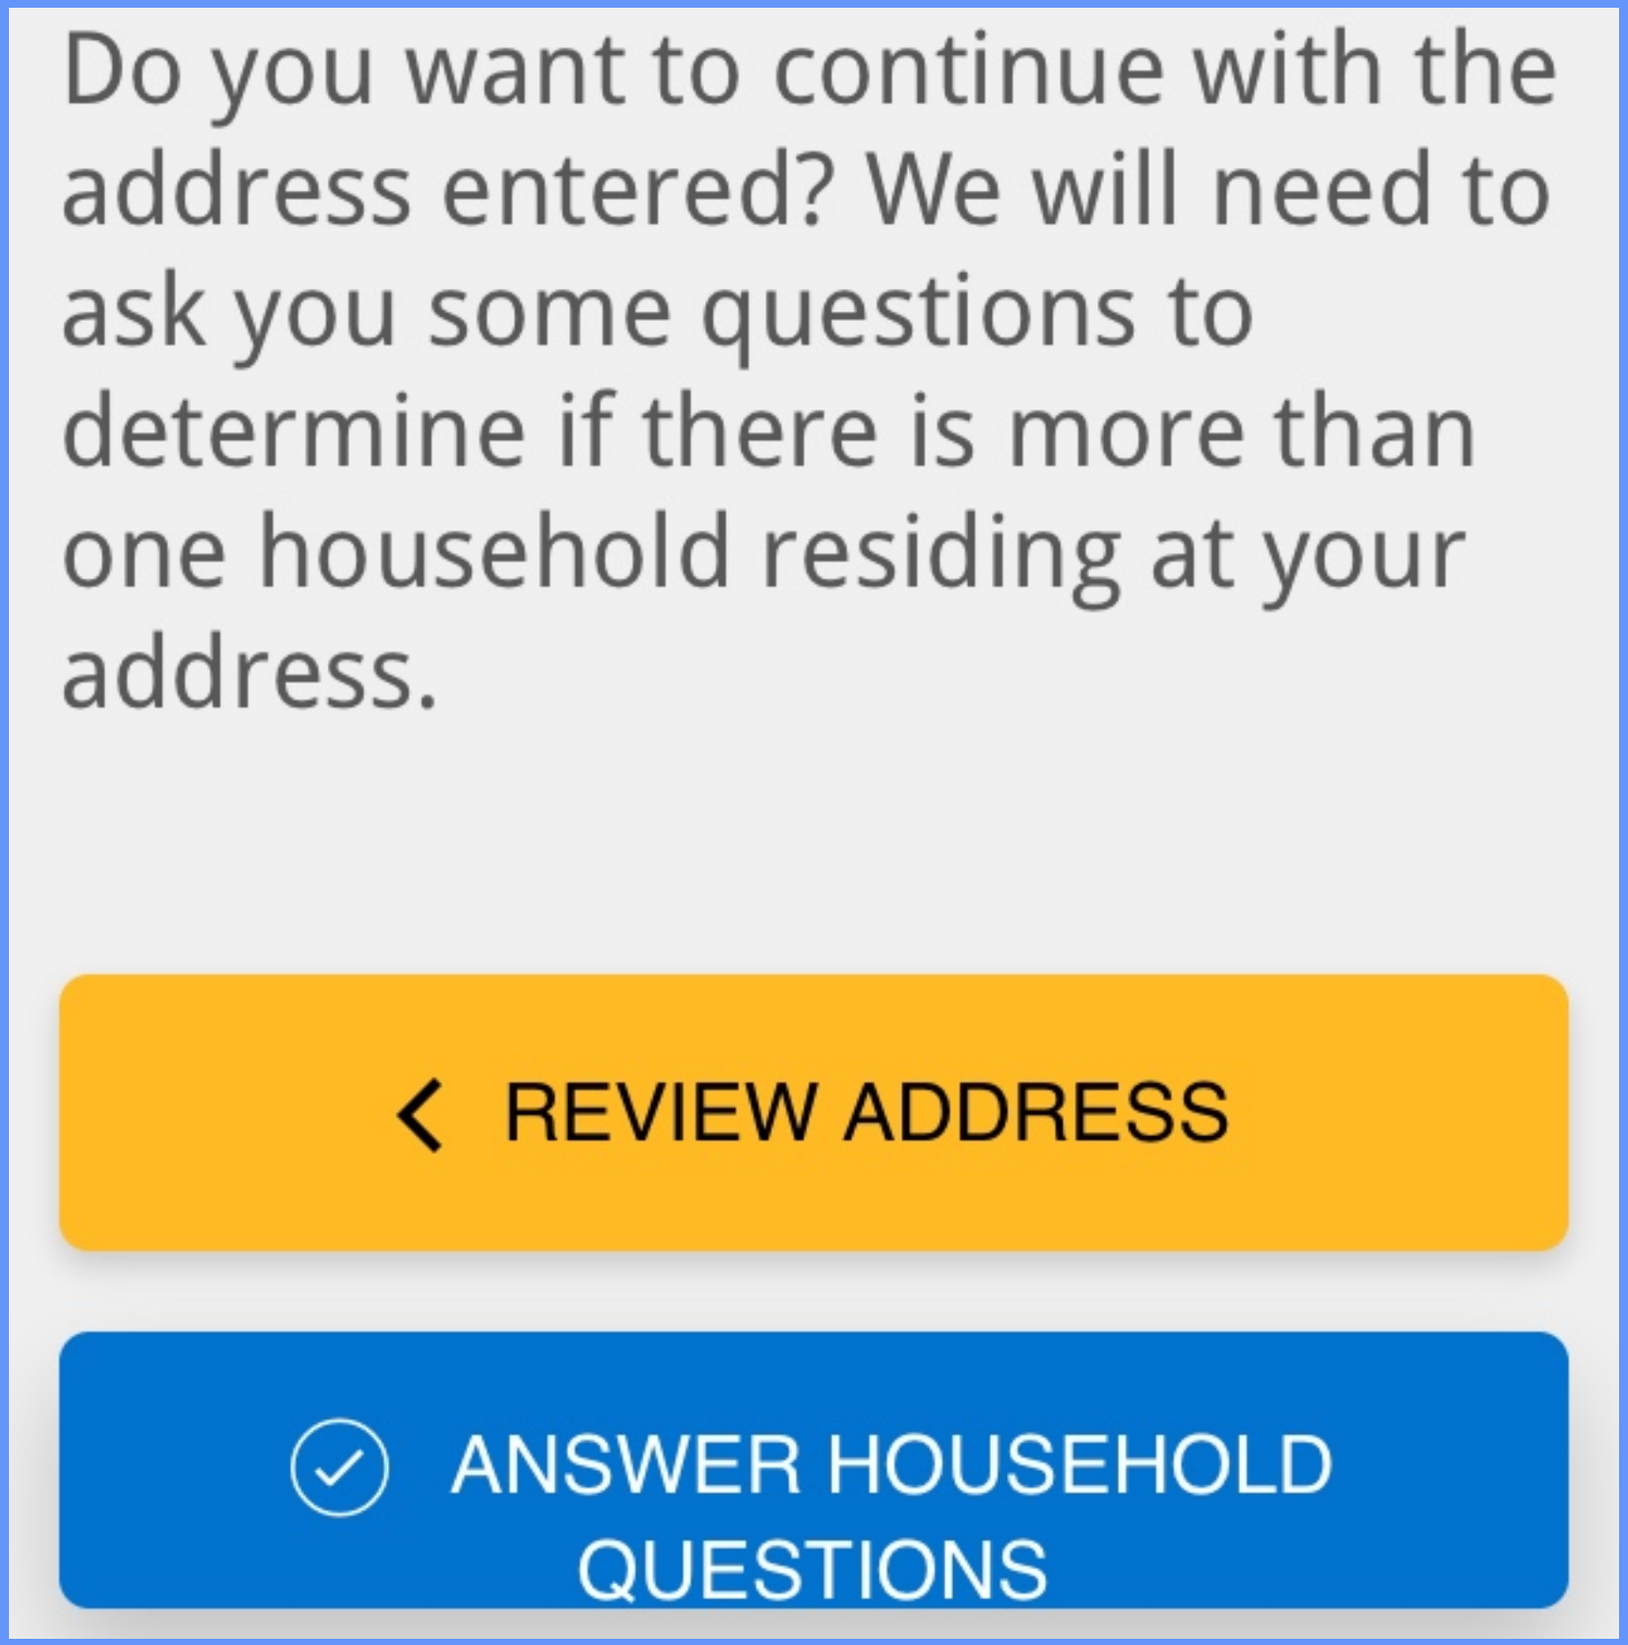


Lifeline household worksheet

> Someone else currently receives a Lifeline-supported service at the address you entered. This other person may or may not be a part of your household. In order to determine whether there is more than one household residing at your address, please select "Answer Household Questions". Or, you may go back and verify that the address entered is correct.

Lifeline is a government program that provides a monthly discount on home or mobile telephone services. Only ONE Lifeline discount is allowed per household. Members of a household are not permitted to receive Lifeline service from multiple telephone companies.

When using a previously used address, such as a shelter, you may run into some difficulty.



Select "Answer Household Questions"

Answer the questions. If the answer to both is "no" you will be asked to verify that answers are correct.
